

Buffy to get youth sentence

COURTS She helped in the rape and murder of 13-year-old Nina Courtepatte when she was just a child herself, and will be sentenced as one for her part in the brutal crime, a judge ruled yesterday.

The 20-year-old woman known only as Buffy was 16 when Courtepatte was lured to a west-end golf course and killed in 2004.

She was found guilty almost one year ago for her part in the crime. The judge found that Buffy stabbed Courtepatte in the neck, and held her down while she was raped twice.

Crown prosecutors are asking for the maximum seven-year penalty under the Youth Criminal Justice Act. Buffy will be sentenced next week.

Plane crash being probed

MADING NGOR
for Metro Edmonton

AIRCRAFT A mysterious plane crash is now being investigated after a man was found dead next to an aircraft that was missing since Monday.

An autopsy was being carried out on the victim yesterday in Calgary to establish a positive identification of the deceased man, Coronation RCMP said in a release yesterday. The pilot left Edmonton's City Centre Airport Monday in a single-engine plane.

A spokesman for the Coronation RCMP, Const. Brett Torpe, told Metro yesterday it's "too early in the investigation" to establish the circumstances of the crash, where it was heading, as well as the name of the victim on board.

"Due to complexities of the aircraft, the final report may not be out for a year," said Torpe.

The Calgary Chief Medical Examiner's office, which is examining the remains of the deceased, said autopsy results could take several days.

On June 19, at approximately 3:30 p.m., Coronation RCMP were notified by the Canadian Forces Joint Rescue Operations Centre based in Trenton, Ont., that a search aircraft had discovered a downed single-engine airplane in a remote area approximately 40 kilometres northwest of Coronation.

Catholic archbishops speak out against nuclear reactors

VICTORIA HANDYSIDES
victoria.handysides@metronews.ca

Toxic waste, terrorist threats and depleted natural resources could be part of Alberta's future if nuclear reactors are erected in the province, a reality of which citizens are largely unaware, Alberta's Catholic archbishops said yesterday.

"Of course, we're not scientists, we're not nuclear physicists, but it seems for every argument that is posed for establishing nuclear energy there is a counter," Archbishop

Richard Smith said yesterday.

The bishops feel environmental and ethical ramifications of establishing nuclear power in Alberta would be vast, including drawing a massive volume of water from the province's main arteries and the problem of storing nuclear waste.

"We believe creation is God's work, and we have a responsibility to be effective stewards of it," he said.

"Would we be effective stewards of creation if that nuclear waste was stored for hundreds or thousands of years?"

Four bishops issued a list of concerns on what they feel is the impending threat of nuclear power, and are urging Albertans to become educated on the potential looming energy source.

A recent month-long online provincial government survey, which was only answered by 3,500 people, is of great concern to the archbishops, Smith said.

A "deeper and broader" discussion between Albertans and their government is desperately needed, so people understand the scope and potential of nuclear power before supporting it as a quick fix to the oilsands.

A nuclear reactor, Smith added, would make the province a terrorist beacon. He added the church supports the use of nuclear technology for "peaceful" purposes.

"Sadly, we're living in an age of terrorism that is prevalent around the globe," he said. "It seems obvious to us that a nuclear reactor could become a pretty attractive target."

PRIDE Coming out is a transition that isn't made for many Albertans until the passing of a loved one, Pride officials say.

"Suddenly it's safe to come out," said Pride spokesman Brian Van Alstine. "We find a lot of people coming out much later in life."

Festival organizers will be holding the first-ever LGBTQ senior strawberry tea event today, as the reality of the rising population of gay seniors in Edmonton rises.

"It's a lot more than people think," Van Alstine said.

The free event will be held today from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Pride Centre of Edmonton.

Dinosaurs, Shanghai acrobats and rock stars will all be descending upon the city next month as part of this year's Capital EX festivities.

The yearly carnival, which runs this year from July 17-26, features a number of diverse acts to lure people through the gates, along with the usual games and rollercoasters that bring thousands to the Northlands grounds every summer.

"We've got something for every demographic," said Northlands president Ken Knowles. "A lot of people are deciding to stay at home instead of a summer vacation."

"We have something for everybody." Capital EX, now in its 130th year, had many highlights outlined at a media launch yesterday, such as performances by Cirque Shanghai Bai Xi and the Walking with Dinosaurs arena spectacular. Plenty of well-known musical acts will also be featured throughout late July, including rockers Our Lady Peace on July 23, hip-hop star K-os on July 17, Thornley on July 25 and others. Comedian Howie Mandel will also make an appearance July 26.

Edmonton band Stereos was on hand to perform at the launch, and the now-Toronto-based act expressed their excitement to be performing in front of family and friends. They will be opening for Mariana's Trench July 21.

"We love Edmonton, we love coming back to it," said Stereos guitarist Robb Chalifoux.

Ride-All-Day passes are available at Ticketmaster and all Save-On-Food locations starting Friday. Three-day passes to the Rexall Edmonton Indy are also being tied in with special gate admissions to Capital EX.

Teams of firefighters descend on Alberta

VICTORIA HANDSIDES
victoria.handsides@metronews.ca

EMERGENCY Hundreds of firefighters are expected to fly into Alberta today from various parts of Canada, to help local crews battle wildfires that are burning out of control.

"It's hard to predict exactly when these fires are going to be contained, and what we need are boots on the ground," said Sustainable Resource Development spokesman Geoff Driscoll. "We're getting that from across Canada and Mexico."

Yesterday, there were 73 fires burning in the province. Of those, 12 in northern Alberta were considered out of control.

Between Tuesday and yesterday, crews worked tirelessly on danger zones, and successfully contained six wildfires. Nearly 200 Canadian firefighters should fly in from Ontario and New Brunswick today.

Last night, 21 firefighters landed from Halisco, Mexico. The province recently signed a partnership with the region. The Halisco crews rushed to help when asked earlier this week. No communities, homes, or businesses are under threat, Driscoll said.

Highway 63 was reopened Tuesday, but travellers are advised to take Highway 881, Alberta Transportation spokeswoman Heather Kaszuba said.

The province hasn't imported this many firefighters since 2006, when lightning sparked dozens of wildfires.

News in brief

CRASH Police are desperately seeking witnesses to a deadly pedestrian collision Saturday night. Just after 8 p.m., a 34-year-old pedestrian attempted to walk northbound across 153 Avenue, about three blocks west of Castledowns Road, when he was struck by a white Cadillac Escalade. The driver, 25-year-old Ahmed Mohamed Ali, turned himself in to police later that evening, and was charged with dangerous driving, dangerous driving causing death, failure to remain at the scene of a collision and dangerous driving. Traffic division officers are seeking anyone who may have seen the Escalade before, or after the collision.

DEATH Police say a driver of a pickup truck died on Tuesday after his car hit a ditch and rolled on 66th Street, north of Edmonton. Alcohol and speed have not been ruled out as factors in the collision, police said. Police would not release the name of the deceased, a male from Edmonton, to give enough time to notify the next of kin. No one else was injured in the collision.

Sightings

- More than 30 cougar sightings have been reported in the Squamish area this month. Two of the animals have been killed by conservation officers.

ATTACK The mother who got in between her three-year-old daughter and a cougar in Squamish, B.C. said she is grateful her little girl suffered minor injuries only and sad that the animal is dead.

As Maureen Lee walked with her mother Maya in Fisherman's Park near the Squamish River Tuesday night, a cougar approached the girl from behind and swiped at her.

Maureen Lee told Metro Canada yesterday that without thinking she grabbed Maya and stood between the girl and the animal.

"I knew that it was just a matter of seconds that he needed to kill her," Lee said. "I knew that any delay would mean her life."

"I did what I think any mother would do, I jumped between him and her and I held on to her."

The animal then walked away, leaving Maya with some minor wounds.

Lee added that Maya doesn't fully understand the danger she was in.

"She's a strong, intelligent and brave girl."

Hope seen for 2010: Survey

The worst of the earnings slump may be over for Canadian companies, according to a survey of senior financial executives released yesterday.

Most firms will see their revenue grow or at least remain unchanged in 2009, suggesting that the downward trend will reverse itself early next year, the survey of more than 200 executives found.

The study, conducted by Canadian Financial Executives Research Foundation, FEI Canada, and sponsored by Ernst & Young, looked at public and private companies, as well as government corporations and agencies, academic institutions, and non-profit organizations.

Fifty-four per cent of respondents expect higher or unchanged revenue this year.

Among public companies, a small majority said they expect their companies' share values to increase in 2009.

Over half the executives surveyed thought the economy would return to normal growth rates in early 2010.

Government mediates Air Canada dispute

NEGOTIATIONS The Canadian government appointed two mediators yesterday to help Air Canada and the union representing its flight attendants to reach a labour agreement.

The Canadian Union of Public Employees, which represents about 6,700 flight attendants at the country's biggest airline, said talks broke off early Tuesday because the cash-strapped carrier's proposals would reduce wages for some staff and lead to job losses for others.

CUPE is the lone holdout in contract talks as the company's four other unions have reached tentative deals that will freeze wages and pension benefits for 21 months.

The government named former Ontario Superior Court Judge James Farley, already working to settle pension disagreements between the airline and its unions, and Quebec's regional director of the federal mediation and conciliation services, Jacques Lessard, as the mediators.

They have until noon on Monday June 22 to work out a labour deal.

At that time they can make recommendations for the settlement of any remaining differences between the parties.

Labour and pension moratorium agreements are key to Air Canada securing fresh financing, which the heavily indebted airline hopes will help it avert a second bankruptcy filing in six years.

"In light of the seriousness of Air Canada's situation, it is in the best interests of both sides to resolve their differences quickly," said Minister of Labour Rona Ambrose.

U.S. meddling: Iran

Iran's Foreign Ministry summoned the Swiss ambassador, who represents U.S. interests in Tehran, yesterday to protest at "interventionist" U.S. statements on the country's election, Fars News Agency reported.

The Foreign Ministry communicated Iran's "protest and displeasure" over statements by U.S. government officials about the outcome of last week's presidential vote, Iran's semi-official news agency said. In Washington, the White House said U.S. President Barack Obama will continue to defend the right of Iranians to peacefully protest the outcome of the election without "meddling" in Iran's internal debate. The State Department strongly rejected claims that the U.S. was interfering in the disputed

"I suspect we are in good company," said State Department spokesman P.J. Crowley. "This is not about the United States."

A senior Canadian diplomat in Tehran had also been called in to the ministry, Fars News Agency said. REUTERS

Probe ordered

Iran's Interior Ministry has ordered an investigation into an attack on university students, which they say was carried out by Islamic militia and police. One student activist who declined to be named told Reuters Tuesday that four students were killed during the violence.

Iran likely wants nuclear weapons: Watchdog

NUCLEAR Iran wants the ability to build nuclear weapons to gain the reputation of a major power in the Middle East, the head of the UN nuclear watchdog said in a BBC interview yesterday. Tehran denied the assertion. Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad's disputed reelection last week has cast doubt on Western powers' hope of a dialogue with Iran aimed at curbing its uranium enrichment program, which Iran says is for generating electricity only. "My gut feeling is that Iran definitely would like to have the technology," Mohamed El-Baradei said. REUTERS

News in brief

SRI LANKA The remnants of the Tamil Tigers have vowed to form a government to push their separatist cause, which Sri Lanka yesterday called an "hallucination" and another illegal attempt to violate its unitary status. The decision came less than a month after the Sri Lankan military crushed the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam in a 25-year civil war, and President Mahinda Rajapaksa declared Sri Lanka reunified.

GITMO The U.S. government has decided the fate of about half the detainees at the Guantanamo Bay prison camp, and no more than a quarter of them will go on trial, Attorney General Eric Holder said yesterday. President Barack Obama's order for the prison to be closed by the end of January has met resistance in Congress. Last week, nine prisoners were transferred to Saudi Arabia, Bermuda, Iraq and Chad. One, Ahmed Khalifan Ghailani, accused of involvement in the 1998 U.S. Embassy bombings in Africa, was sent to New York and became the first detainee transferred to the U.S. for trial by civilian court. REUTERS

Larger U.S. banks quick to repay bailout money

ECONOMY Ten of the largest U.S. banks said yesterday they repaid more than $68 billion US of taxpayer bailout funds, as they race to extract themselves from government restrictions on pay for top executives.

Banks are returning money taken from the $700-billion Troubled Asset Relief Program, which was once intended to spur lending but is now viewed as a sign that recipients are too weak to survive on their own.

JPMorgan Chase & Co. said it repaid $25 billion to TARP, while Goldman Sachs Group Inc. and Morgan Stanley said they repaid $10 billion each.

Among other banks, U.S. Bancorp said it repaid $6.6 billion, Capital One Financial Corp. $3.6 billion, American Express Co. $3.4 billion, BB&T Corp. $3.1 billion, Bank of New York Mellon Corp. $3 billion, State Street Corp. $2 billion and Northern Trust Corp. $1.57 billion.

Apart from Northern Trust, all of these banks underwent government "stress tests" of their ability to withstand a deep recession and the government gave these 10 permission to repay the funds last week.

Several of the banks that underwent the tests were ordered to plug capital shortfalls, including Bank of America and Citigroup. Each took $45 billion from the program, and the government is in the process of taking a potential 34 per cent equity stake in Citigroup. REUTERS

Former priest weds partner

Cutie caught cuddling woman

A former Roman Catholic priest and media celebrity who left the Catholic Church last month after he was photographed cuddling a woman on a Florida beach has married his girlfriend, local media reported yesterday.

Alberto Cutie, 40, who joined the Episcopal Church after the photos stoked debate over the Catholic celibacy requirement for priests, married 35-year-old Ruhama Buni Canellis on Tuesday in a civil ceremony, the Miami Herald reported. The couple avoided photographers and news crews when they were married by a judge in Miami's Coral Gables district.

Cutie, born in Puerto Rico of Cuban parents, was a charismatic preacher and religious celebrity. He became embroiled in a media frenzy last month after a Spanish-language magazine published photos of him in swim trunks, cuddling and kissing a woman on a beach in Florida.

He previously dispensed relationship advice on Spanish-language television shows, church radio programs and newspaper columns. REUTERS

Bill 44 creates ripple effect of other issues

Relating

Andrea Woo

metronews.ca/woo

Earlier this month, a bill passed in Alberta enshrining gay rights into the province's human code. Celebrations were overshadowed, however, by a buried clause — a tiny but powerful traitor tumbling out of a rainbow-coloured Trojan horse.

Under section 11.1 of Bill 44, the Human Rights, Citizenship and Multiculturalism Amendment Act, Alberta teachers are now required to give formal notice to parents before teaching subjects dealing explicitly with religion, sexuality or sexual orientation. Parents can then pull their children out of these classes without academic penalty.

While I support parents being informed in advance of these lessons and having the ability to make such decisions, the introduction of such legalities can create a ripple effect of secondary issues.

Requiring formal, written consent before covering sexuality or sexual orientation, for example, suggests to a child there is something so improper and perverse about it that even teachers must obtain permission before discussing it.

It would also curtail the natural progression of class discussions and could cost students some very valuable lessons.

As well, if teachers must send out such advisories, wait for responses from every parent, determine whether or not to still proceed and, if so, (presumably) find alternative arrangements for children who cannot partake, it is expected that some teachers will simply opt for less contestable content.

It should be noted that before the passing of the bill, Alberta parents were already notified before their children partook in sex education classes. The biggest difference now is the intimidating legal threat that teachers can be brought before Alberta Human Rights tribunals and its subsequent effects.

This is not an explicit issue of sexuality or religion, but of a teacher's ability to do his or her job fearlessly, and the implicit effect this has on our children's attitudes toward such topics.

Women, girls need a room of their own

FourthWave

Canice Leung

metronews.ca/fourthwave

As a kid, my favourite activity was to read children's encyclopedias; my favourite entry was on aboriginal vision quests. Boys are cast into the wilderness to meditate and discover their life direction; they emerge men of truth and purpose. (No mention of the female equivalent.)

As a high-schooler, I spewed my emotions into a well-guarded journal. In English class, I read Virginia Woolf's A Room Of One's Own. (Her theory: "A woman must have money and a room of her own if she is to write.") I wondered if self-reflection was my own rite of passage — a notion explored in She's Shameless, an anthology to be released next week by Shameless, a Toronto-based alt-magazine for young women.

The essays are honest — about getting knocked up, knocked down, first times, first loves — but as co-editors Stacey May Fowles and Megan Griffith-Greene wrote in the book's introduction, "This is not an after-school special."

A pregnant 16-year-old contemplates, then rejects, abortion; a fourth-grader's French teacher peers down her shirt; a virginity is lost to a slimy married father twice her age — but that's not the point.

The voices of young women are rarely heard. Adults, often men, are invited on TV to wring their hands about teen-girl crises (pregnancy, anorexia, depression, promiscuity) and asked how to "fix" these problems. "Grow up, be smart, take responsibility," but teens aren't given that agency, which is what makes She's Shameless remarkable. The essays neither condone nor condemn; some contributors display regret, but their bios tell of eventual successes as "proud feminist mamas," university graduates, artists.

As it turns out, a writer shared my vision quest. Teri Vlassopoulos on making zines, which quieted her restless thoughts: "If they're a little embarrassing or if there's some bad spelling in there, it's OK ... What matters is the importance of having tangible evidence and amassing proof. We should make things that we can keep around for later, even if just to burn them."

Some feminists believe women are absent from history books (and kids' encyclopedias) because they were written by men. If that's true, greater the reason to write.

Canice Leung is a former editor of Ryerson University feminist magazine McClung's, copy editor at Metro, ardent feminist and loudmouth.

Obama unveils reforms

Changes to U.S. regulation meant to prevent future collapses

President Barack Obama laid out his vision for recrafting U.S. financial regulation yesterday, vowing to halt "a cascade of mistakes ... over the course of decades" that eroded bank and market oversight.

The Obama plan, under development for six months, next goes to the U.S. Congress for debate, where more than a dozen committee hearings are scheduled between now and mid-July.

The plan takes on some tough jobs, such as forcing large financial firms to boost their capital cushions and regulating over-the-counter derivatives and securitized instruments.

But it only partially tackles a task once seen as vital — a top-to-bottom revamp of financial regulatory agencies.

No merger of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) is being proposed, for instance, due largely to political obstacles.

Opposition

Powerful lobbying groups for corporate America were quick to pounce on the president's plan after it was released. Conservative House Republicans are offering a rival plan.

A contentious centerpiece of the plan is vesting the Federal Reserve with new powers over "systemic risk" in the economy with the aim of preventing future disasters like September's collapse of former Wall Street giant Lehman Brothers and the taxpayer bailout of mega-insurer American International Group.

The government would be also empowered to seize and unwind large, troubled companies that are not banks.

As well, Obama wants to beef up regulation of money market mutual funds, credit rating agencies and hedge funds, which would be required to register with the SEC.

GM faces backlash over dealer closings

AUTO General Motors' controversial decision to force the closing of hundreds of dealerships is triggering a backlash from store owners who are now contemplating legal action at the same time consumers are expressing outrage about losing service.

One GM dealer confirmed yesterday he has hired legal counsel, and a small group of retailers may fight the automaker over pending closures and an alleged lack of fair compensation.

"We've got a litigation team looking into this," said Bob Slessor, president of Robert Slessor Pontiac Buick GMC in Grimsby, Ont. "We're reviewing our options."

A public petition calling for GM to reconsider the closures has now topped 2,300 names, with people lambasting the company for forcing them to travel long distances for future service and for unilaterally closing popular stores rather than letting the market decide.

GM of Canada Ltd., which is fighting for survival, announced last month that it would close 240 — more than a third — of its 705 dealers by the end of October 2010, when their current franchise agreements expire.

GM offered "wind-down payments" to dealers who agreed to close by the end of this year.

Wireless startups ready for fight

COMPETITION After months of promises and carefully worded statements, the country's three newest wireless companies have taken the gloves off as they prepare to go head-to-head for a slice of Canada's $12.7-billion wireless sector.

During a telecom conference yesterday in Toronto, the chief executives of Public Mobile, Globalive Wireless and DAVE Wireless traded barbs as they attempted to explain why their respective business plans stood the greatest chance of success.

All three plan to launch services in various cities across the country later this year or early 2010.

Alek Krstajic, the CEO of Public Mobile, said his company is proposing to go after the roughly 30 per cent of Canadians who don't own a cellphone.

DAVE's backers have paid $243 million for spectrum in major cities across the country.

Globalive, meanwhile, is proposing to launch two separate wireless brands to capture different market segments.

In a move it hopes will glitz up its image and bring a little more attention to the league, the NHL's annual awards gala will unfold in Las Vegas, a city with plenty of vice, but very little ice. The hardware handout will take place at the Palms Casino Resort and there will be a little hip-hop and Hollywood mixed with hockey as the game's brightest stars try to outshine the neon on the Strip.

"They want buzz," presenter Jeremy Roenick said of the league in a recent interview with a Vegas newspaper. "Las Vegas, there's no bigger buzz you're going to get for entertainment."

Even when the awards

"Las Vegas, there's no bigger buzz you're going to get." Jeremy Roenick show was held in Toronto, the league always brought together an eclectic group of entertainers and presenters. This year will be no different and no less puzzling.

Chaka Khan and Robin Thicke — whose father Alan has hosted these awards in the past — will be among the entertainers. Among those expected to walk the red carpet and make appearances during the show are Snoop Dogg (huge fan of the Anaheim Ducks) and Michael Bublé (minority owner of the WHL's Vancouver Giants), along with actors William Fichtner (Prison Break) and Tricia Helfer (Burn Notice).

There will of course be the usual array of impressive hockey legends on hand to help with the presentations, including Doug Gilmour, Mark Messier, Stan Mikita, Sergei Fedorov and Brian Leetch, but the focus will be on the players up for awards.

Again this year, Alexander Ovechkin is expected to need a trailer to take home his prizes. Already assured of the Rocket Richard Trophy for leading the league with 56 goals, he is the favourite to repeat as the Hart Trophy winner and Pearson Award winner.

It's veggies time to shine

HomeScape

Sylvia Putz

metronews.ca/homescape

If seed sales are any indication, vegetable gardens are definitely on the rise. Research has shown that vegetable seed sales last year outshone the sales of flower seeds across North America for the first time, says Denis Flanagan, of Landscape Ontario, the provincial horticultural trades association.

And the research also shows a new demographic — young, urban hipsters are getting into vegetable gardening in a big way, not just mature folks from the old country any more.

There are plenty of reasons for the newfound interest, says Flanagan. More people are growing vegetables because they are trying to eat local rather than buying goods flown or trucked in from faraway California or other distant places.

In urban centres, gardening often means squeezing in a small vegetable patch in a postage-stamp-sized backyard, or participating in an allotment garden. Another variation for condo owners or apartment dwellers is a container garden on the balcony. The important message is that it can be done.

For beginners, choosing a few of your favourite vegetables is the way to go. Don't overextend yourself, or you'll get discouraged. To maximize vertical space, plant climbing species such as peas or beans along walls or fences.

For more great ideas and useful gardening tips, see landscapeOntario.com.

Just winging it for dad

Grilled wings, potato wedges, veggies and dip an ideal Father's Day dish

À la carte

Barb Holland

metronews.ca/alacarte

What dad doesn't like wings? And they go especially well with beer. Serve these grilled wings with grilled potato wedges, veggies and dip for an easy and relaxed meal.

These recipes are from Gathering Around the Grill: Inspirational Menus and Grilling Ideas for Family and Friends by Andrea Witzel & Kris Schumacher (published by Broil King). This cookbook offers 21 menus for occasions throughout the year, lots of tips, grilling information and, of course, recipes.

Grilled Chicken Wings with Roquefort Dip and Veggies

If time permits, mari-

Almost every guy loves wings, a great companion for a cold beer. Try this meal for Father's Day — it's easy, with a bit of planning.

nate wings up to one day ahead in the refrigerator. If you enjoy a Buffalo-style wing, toss wings in hot sauce after grilling or serve with the sauce as a dip. Makes four servings.

INGREDIENTS:

- 3 lbs (1.5 kg) chicken wings
- Marinade:
- 1/3 cup (75 ml) vegetable oil
- 1 clove garlic, minced

- 1 tsp (5 ml) each: Chili powder, dried oregano leaves and kosher salt
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) cayenne (or more to taste)
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) red wine vinegar

METHOD:

Cut off and discard wing tips, then cut each wing at the joint to make two pieces. In large bowl, whisk together vegetable oil, garlic, chili powder, oregano, salt, cayenne and vinegar. Add wings and toss to coat.

When ready to cook, drain wings and discard marinade. Lightly brush grill on one side of barbecue with oil. Preheat barbecue on high, then reduce heat to medium and cook wings, turning to set grill marks, about 15 minutes. Move wings up to upper rack and continue cooking 15 to 20 minutes or until cooked through and tender.

Roquefort Dip and Veggies

If time permits make up to one day ahead, cover and refrigerate until serving time. If this is too strong a flavour for kids, try a Caesar salad dressing as a dip. Makes about 2/3 cup (150 ml) dip.

INGREDIENTS:

- 1/2 cup (125 ml) mayonnaise
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) grated onion
- 1 tsp chopped fresh thyme
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) red wine vinegar
- 1/3 cup (75 ml) crumbled Roquefort or other blue cheese, crumbled
- Cut vegetables: Carrots, celery and red, yellow and orange pepper strips

METHOD:

Stir together dip ingredients, mayonnaise, garlic, onion, thyme, vinegar and cheese.

Grilled Potato Wedges:

- Scrub 4 medium potatoes. Cut into wedges and toss with 2 tbsp (30 ml) olive oil and pinch each salt and pepper. Place in grill basket over medium-high to medium heat and grill, turning or shaking pan often until golden brown and tender, about 30 minutes.

Still Hardy

I got to chat with Bill Hardy last week during his cross-country tour in support of the Australian wines that bear his family name.

A true living legend; the fifth generation winemaker turned brand ambassador has become almost as iconic in Aussie wine circles as his great grandfather Thomas Hardy.

With competition from exotic upstarts like Argentina and an economy that has consumers buying below their preferred palate level; Down Under is feeling the heat.

Mr. Hardy's strategy to slow the Aussie exodus is to play his family history card: One that illustrates how years of making consistent wines from many different price points always gives the customer an option called Hardy.

I enter the Nottage Hill line as evidence. The 2006 Shiraz ($13.45 - $14.99) is balanced right down the middle with soft red fruit and a light spine of pepper that makes for a perfect everyday wine as well as a barbecue buddy for grilled meats.

The Stamp Series may be even better known. The 2008 Riestling Gewurztraminer ($9.95 - $11.99) is a unique citrusy mix of sweet green fruit and spice that's a refreshing match with salads, fruit, soft cheeses and, yes, Chinese food.

Prices reflect the range across the country. Some products may not be available in all provinces.

Father's Day GIFT GUIDE

SPECIAL FEATURES EDITOR: STEPHANIE.BOMBA@METRONEWS.CA

Gifts for the tech lover

RAFAEL BRUSILOV
for Metro Canada

Everyone knows dads love their gadgets, and with Father's Day just around the corner, the pressure is on to find the perfect gift.

These days more people are looking for ways to secure that "wow!" potential without breaking the bank — that's why this year, Metro is featuring both fancy and frugal picks to fit any budget.

CAMERAS

Canon PowerShot SD780 IS digital camera, $299

Sleek and sexy, Canon's newest Powershot is light and skinny yet powerful, with an optical stabilizer and 3x optical zoom lens attached to a 12.1 megapixel sensor. It also shoots HD movies and has an HDMI slot for easy playback output onto your HD TV. Pick it up and play with it in a store — you'll understand right away why it just feels "right" to the touch.

Canon Digital Rebel T1i digital SLR camera, $999

Canon's new face-melting SLR smashes the term "entry-level SLR" into meaninglessness with a 15.1 megapixel sensor, DIGIC 4 Image Processor, full HD video capture at up to 1920x1080 resolution, a large three-inch LCD with anti-reflective and scratch-resistant coatings. SLR cameras use much larger silicon sensors than smaller, point-and-shoot cameras, which is part of the reason why pictures taken with an SLR look so much clearer and more vibrant. With its HD video capabilities and outstanding photo quality, attached to an entry-level price under $1,000, Canon's T1i is a great buy for a dad who wants to graduate to a "real" camera.

TVS

Panasonic TC-P42G10 plasma television, $1,299

A plasma television that scored a big hit with reviewers, the 42-inch G10 is a great bargain as an HD TV that is full of features and has a surprisingly high level of quality for its price tag. True black colour reproduction and overall colour accuracy is very good and the TV uses less power than most other plasmas in its category.

LG 47LH90 LCD television, $2,899

An intelligent, luxurious HD 1080p TV for the discerning dad, LG's 47-inch LH90 has an LED backlit panel for increased clarity and colour detail. The TV's 240Hz TruMotion technology drastically eliminates on-screen motion blur when watching sports or gaming and an intelligent sensor inside the TV actually adjusts the picture to optimize it for the viewing conditions in the room. With a contrast ratio of 2 million to 1, expect dad's eyeballs to get dazzled for a good, long time.

MOBILE PHONES
LG Rumor 2, $269 without a plan or $39.95 with a three-year plan from Bell

Despite all the hoopla about the newest Apple and BlackBerry phones, LG's Rumor 2 sneaks in with a plethora of equivalent features for a very attractive price. Featuring a slick, sliding-faceplate design that sports a full QWERTY keyboard, the phone has Bluetooth Stereo, a 1.3 megapixel camera and built-in music player with up to 16 GB of expandable memory.

The YUBZ Retro Mobile Handset, right, and the Vuzix iWear AV310 Widescreen video eyewear are two out-of-the-box gifts you could give your dad on Sunday.

Apple iPhone 3G 32GB, $299 with a three-year contract

The shrewd marketers at Apple are releasing their newest iPhone juggernaut tomorrow — just in time for Father's Day — and it does appear to live up to the hype. Letting you shoot VGA video or just take pictures with its new 3 megapixel camera, the phone is also purportedly the fastest iPhone yet for web-surfing and email.

OTHER COOL STUFF
YUBZ Retro Mobile Handset, $44.95

A nifty throwback to the times when you only had to hold a receiver up to your face, the handset plugs directly into your mobile phone for old-school talking. Features a volume slider and one-touch answering, and it's purported to reduce radiation hitting your face as you talk by 95 per cent.

Vuzix iWear AV310 Widescreen video eyewear, $249

Featuring a 16:9 widescreen display that simulates a 52-inch screen, the Vuzix AV310 looks like something right out of Star Trek and is sure to be a distinctive gift for a dad who wants something none of his friends probably have yet. The glasses' adapter can plug right into an iPod or any other video device and lets you privately watch up to 11 hours of video on a single AA battery.

The Panasonic TC-P42G10 plasma television, left, and the LG 47LH90 LCD television.

A sensual scent for romantic evenings. Jo Malone Dark Amber & Ginger Lily Cologne ($118 for 100 ml)

Aveda Sun Care Protective Hair Veil ($32)

WHAT'S NEW?

Remember when summer hair care meant spritzing it with lemon juice or Sun-In? (Thanks, YMI!) Now that we're older and wiser, we need a smarter way to keep hair looking healthy and sun-kissed. Aveda's new botanical-rich Sun Care system includes a mask that repairs hair after sunning and swimming and a spray that blocks UV rays for up to 16 hours.

Amy's alcoholism is killing us, parents say

PLEA Amy Winehouse's alcohol addiction is "killing" her parents, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

Mitch and Janis Winehouse are desperate to "rescue" their 25-year-old daughter, who they claim is in "denial" about her substance abuse problem. In an interview that was to be aired last night, Mitch said: "I said, 'Amy, you've got to do this, you've got to go to this doctor, you've got to do this, you've got to do that, you're killing me, you're killing your mum.' None of it worked."

Janis added: "The need to rescue her is enormous. I just want her to be OK and I would do whatever it took to make that right."

Mitch blames the singer's estranged husband Blake Fielder-Civil: "The option of them being together is too horrible to contemplate."

LiLo-SamRo saga continues

HOT/COLD Lindsay Lohan has split from Samantha Ronson — again, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The actress — who reunited with her DJ lover earlier this month after a high-profile breakup — was reportedly dumped by text message after the pair had a blazing row about Ronson's friend Nicole Richie on Monday night.

A source told website E! Online: "Nicole refuses even to be in the same room as Lindsay and Lindsay was furious when Sam was invited to a party Nicole held for a mutual friend and she wasn't."

"Sam went to the party and it really upset Lindsay."

At the bash, Ronson enjoyed a meal with pregnant

Richie and reportedly sent a message to Lohan telling her their relationship was over and to stop contacting her.

Earlier this month, Lohan was spotted wearing an engagement ring, and a source revealed Lohan was trying hard to keep Ronson happy: "Lindsay has been doing so much better and has been giving Samantha her space. She is really dedicated to making it work."

Jessica off the hook

SAVED BY CELEBRITY? Jessica Alba won't face criminal charges for plastering posters in Oklahoma City, tvguide.com reports.

"The decision has been made to close the case," the police Sgt. Gary Knight said in a statement. "The case will not be presented to the district attorney's office."

Alba was campaigning for White Mike, a group that aims to spread awareness ness of the great white shark's endangered status, according to E! News.

The 28-year-old actress could have faced a felony vandalism charge and possible jail time, but the property owners declined to press charges, E! reports.

Alba released an apology for her actions last week after photos surfaced of her plastering posters onto a downtown bridge, utility boxes and a United Way billboard.

Becks shrinks in third boob job?

CHANGING HER MIND Victoria Beckham has allegedly had her third breast augmentation surgery — this time for a reduction, according to sources.

"She felt that was part of her old image — the big hair, big boobs, fake tan — and that she has moved on since those days," a source told the Sun.

Not a gay swinger: Jada

RUMOUR MILL Jada Pinkett Smith isn't bothered by the rumours that have been swirling for years about her 11-year marriage to Will Smith.

"I've heard all the things — their marriage is not real, he's gay, she's gay, they swing. But at the end of the day, people have to believe what they have to believe," she tells radio station Q100 in Atlanta.

"I'll tell you what, it's too hard to be in a pretend marriage. Life's too short for that one."

The Hills made me bulimic

BODY IMAGE The Hill star Stephanie Pratt confesses that seeing herself onscreen in the hit MTV reality series drove her to bulimia.

"I was horrified," she told Us Weekly. "I remember saying, 'I can't believe how huge I look walking over to Lauren (Conrad)."

But Pratt is quick to absolve the folks behind the show. "The producers never put pressure on us to lose weight," she added.

Metro Recipe of the Day

Tuna and Green Bean Salad

INGREDIENTS:

- 3 cloves garlic, peeled
8 oz (250 g) green beans, halved
6 small red potatoes, halved
2 tbsp (25 ml) balsamic or red wine vinegar
2 tbsp (25 ml) low-fat mayonnaise
1 tbsp (15 ml) olive oil
pinch of salt
1/2 cup (125 ml) fresh basil leaves
8 oz (250 g) cherry tomatoes, halved
2-1/2 cans (15 oz/425 g) water-packed tuna, drained
6 romaine lettuce leaves
1/3 cup (75 ml) black olives, for garnish boiling water and cook 4 minutes, or until crisp-tender. Remove beans, rinse under cold water and drain. Add potatoes to pot and cook 12 minutes, or until tender; drain.

2. Add vinegar, mayonnaise, oil and salt to garlic in food processor and purée. Add basil and 2 tsp (25 ml) water and purée again.
3. Transfer dressing to large bowl. Add tomatoes, beans, potatoes and tuna, tossing to coat. Tear lettuce into small pieces. Add lettuce and toss again. Garnish with olives.

SERVES 4

METHOD:

1. Blanch garlic in large pot of boiling water 3 minutes. Transfer garlic to food processor or blender; set aside. Add beans to

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

sallybrompton.com

ARIES

MARCH 21-APRIL 20

Today's Sun-Jupiter aspect gives you divine protection. However, others can't come to your rescue every time you make a mistake — so don't make any.

LIBRA

SEPT 23-OCT 23

Creative and artistic activities will go well for you, as will affairs of the heart. Don't assume a romantic attachment doesn't need to be cared for. It does.

TAURUS

APRIL 21-MAY 21

Your feelings for someone are getting deeper by the day, and over the next 24 hours what passes will bring you closer together into a blending of souls.

SCORPIO

OCT 24-NOV 22

You hate when others keep secrets from you and you'll try to find out what everyone but you is gossiping about. Beware: it may be close to home.

GEMINI

MAY 22-JUNE 21

You push your feelings to one side, maybe out of embarrassment, but today you give your attention to one person. The time to say "I love you" is now.

SAGITTARIUS

NOV 23-DEC 21

Why is everyone so happy to see you? Why do they want favours from you? Is it a joke? If so, you should laugh too. The cosmic powers are on your side.

CANCER

JUNE 22-JULY 22

An achiever by nature, you must keep your ambition under control to get what you desire. Don't make an enemy of someone more powerful than you.

CAPRICORN

DEC 22-JAN 20

Your energy levels will climb today but don't work harder or longer. Finish your schedule quickly and take the rest of the day off. You've earned it.

LEO

JULY 23-AUG 23

Everything seems to be going right for you at the moment and your run of good fortune will continue for quite some time. Don't waste it — use it.

AQUARIUS

JAN 21-FEB 18

Your plans will be bigger and bolder than ever, but in your haste to get started you could overlook an important detail. Take your time and get it right.

VIRGO

AUG 24-SEPT 22

Recent successes may have been to your credit but give some to your team. Say nice things about your colleagues now and they'll be there for you later.

PISCES

FEB 19-MARCH 20

You may think you know about somebody's private life, but it's just the half of it. Focus on your own affairs or others may soon be gossiping about you.
